

Ishan Galapathy

Unlock the hidden capacity already inside your organisation.

For nearly three decades, Ishan Galapathy has helped organisations answer one deceptively simple question: How do you achieve extraordinary results without exhausting your people?

An internationally recognised thought leader in Operational Excellence, his work centres on a powerful realisation. Excellence in productivity is not achieved through investments in technology and automation alone, but by involving and empowering people to improve the processes they own.

Ishan's leadership journey includes senior regional and global Operational Excellence roles with organisations including Kellogg's and Arnott's. Equally comfortable discussing strategy in the boardroom and solving problems on the factory floor, he combines engineering precision, commercial insight and operational expertise to help organisations unlock their potential.
